

Hello from Journeys for Learning & welcome back to a new academic year.

As you will see from the website, there is a great selection of offers to enrich your learning journeys in school for History, RE, reflection, spirituality & PSHE.

With the Hindu festival of Diwali coming up I am once again taking bookings for my fun, inspiring in-school workshops that include: drama, dance, facts & artefacts. We explore this important festival of light and the symbol of light for Christianity also. We focus on things we share with other world faiths and views.

Do get in touch to find out more & to book.

Last term an Essex school asked me to devise a day for year 5 exploring the syllabus question: 'Why is the Resurrection important to Christians?' This was a challenge, but it worked really well.

We focussed on eye witness Gospel accounts, comparing and analysing. We questioned why Mary Magdalene was chosen for Jesus to appear to. We explored how the atonement of Jesus shown through the resurrection affects Christians today. We debated miracles of faith/belief. Would you like one in your school?

Following on from my successful ancient Egyptians days, I am enjoying putting together a new Ancient Greeks workshop. A local school has requested one and I am looking forward to exploring life in all its aspects for this extraordinary society.

Do let me know if your school is interested.

It won't be long... I am looking forward to delivering my Journey to Bethlehem interactive workshop I tell the story as Mary the Mother of Jesus and it really does inspire, as we journey through it to the manger.

I had a great day in Huddersfield last term bringing alive Florence Nightingale for year 1. She really is a great character to get to grips with. So much about life back in Victorian times to explore too, including herbal medicines and new inventions and how modern nursing was inspired by her.

The WW1 heroine, Matron Edith Cavell is another nurse they love. I present her lots in school. So much to be gained from looking at her life, bravery, faith and more. Edith trained with Florence's methods at her training college in London.

This Maya topic is still very popular and KS2 classes I shared it with last academic year loved our dance, facts, art and drama.

Children love the heady mix of storytelling and drama and it really does spark their questioning and thinking.

So, whatever you are planning for the coming terms in your History, RE and more, do get in touch to ask me about enrichment. I am always eager to try new ideas and plan bespoke sessions. It would be great to work with you.

I will be philosophising soon in a local school. Thinking philosophically and exploring Christian belief and practice through a philosophical lens is the challenge.

Have a great term and I hope a link up with your school might come about. Don't forget online & filmed sessions are also available.
